

PROPOSAL: LAYOUT & PALETTE FOR REVIEW

Not yet adopted. Stage 1–3 data collected, Stage 4 (MeSH alignment) and findings not yet run.

This is a proposal, not an adopted identity or a briefing note. It uses a sidebar layout — a single main column plus a narrower right-hand rail — deliberately different from POC1's full-width two-column arrangement, in a distinct muted slate-teal palette, and a project name that does not reuse POC1's "radar" branding. Nothing on this page reflects a real finding.

PLACEHOLDER SECTION HEADING

This is where the opening key-message paragraph will sit once Stage 4 is complete. Single-column body copy, left-aligned rather than justified, with a rule-and-tab section heading instead of POC1's full-width underlined heading.

Second paragraph placeholder, showing how a longer block of body copy reads in this palette at the same 10.6px base size used in POC1, but in one column instead of two.

Third paragraph placeholder with a footnote marker¹ to check the sage superscript colour against the rest of the running text.

POLICY QUESTION

Placeholder policy-question text, styled as a rule-bordered pull-quote rather than POC1's solid-fill banner.
